DuPont Film May Shade Hot Skylab

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts and engineers worked across the nation today to perfect equipment and procedures for flying a delayed repair mission to the overheated Skylab space station.

Material used for the thermal shield might be "Kapton", a special film that is not effected by extreme temperatures, and is manufactured only in the Circleville DuPont plant.

NASA official Dr. J. Shill contacted Dr. Michael Bruno, "Kapton" plant superintendent, on Wednesday night at his home to request a rush shipment of 2 mil "Kapton" for possible use as a thermal shield.

Plant personnel had a 2,000 foot roll of the polyimide film aboard a special NASA aircraft at Port Columbus airport Thursday, less than 16 hours after the request was made. It was being shipped to Marshall Space Center, Huntsville, Ala.

The space agency had hoped to mount the unprecedented mission to erect a sun shield on the orbiting vehicle Sunday but decided Thursday it couldn't be done that soon and delayed the attempt five more days.

It was the second five-day postponement for Skylab 1 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz. They were to have set out in pursuit of the laboratory Tuesday but remained grounded when trouble developed aboard the craft.

The major problem was created when a thermal shield ripped off the Skylab, enabling the outer skin to absorb the sun's rays and heat the interior of the vehicle so that it was uninhabitable.

Flight controllers were able to stabilize the heat at 105 degrees by orienting the spacecraft with one side away from the sun.

John Disher, deputy Skylab program director, said the stabilization bought the time to delay the mission five days, with a possibility it might have to be put off an additional few days.

"That will depend on how well we do with the fabrication of the sails and extension devices and with the training of the crew to erect them," he said.

The sails are awning-like sun shades which experts are developing and which the astronauts will carry as they fly to a linkup with the 85-ton Skylab 272 miles above the earth.

They will take two types of shades and decide which would be the easiest to install after they reach the station and inspect it during a fly-around maneuver.

It will be a dramatic event in the history of U.S. manned space flight as the spacemen attempt to salvage the $294-million laboratory. What they see and do up there will be televised live to earth, so mission control experts can help commander Conrad make decisions.

Rogers Talks On Drug Flow With Colombia

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Colombian officials have agreed on the need for a program to halt the flow of cocaine through Colombia to the United States.

There were more than 200 narcotics arrests in Colombia last year, and about $20 million worth of cocaine and other dangerous drugs were seized. But U.S. officials were dismayed because almost no long sentences were handed out and about 90 per cent of the confiscated drugs disappeared.

Foreign Minister Alfredo Vasquez Carrizosa assured Rogers on Thursday that his government intends to be much tougher on narcotics suspects and would destroy all cocaine and other hard drugs seized, except small amounts necessary as evidence at trials.

According to U.S. officials, large quantities of cocaine from Europe and South America pass to the United States through Colombia. U.S. narcotics and customs officials have come down to assist local authorities.

University students demonstrated and shouted anti-American slogans when Rogers arrived from Peru Thursday and burned a jeep. At the University of Antioquia in Medellin, 250 miles to the northwest, students burned a car and an American flag and stoned buildings, U.S. Embassy officials said.

The inclusion of more than $347 million in property tax relief in the administration's 1973-1975 budget is all the relief the state can give.

Beyond that, Fries pointed out that no one can say as yet how much a lottery would produce. He added that to earmark lottery funds in any specific amount would be "irresponsible." Estimates on what a lottery would produce have varied widely, from about $30 million to $100 million a year.

The current snarl is a result of Republican refusal to go along with an emergency clause on a bill that would create a state commission to plan implementation of a lottery. The refusal means that the bill would not take effect for 90 days, and some members feel this year's session will

McCord Says Nixon Knew Of Maneuvering

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate burglar James W. McCord Jr. testified today he was told President Nixon was aware of offers of clemency made to him.

He told the Senate Watergate committee that he was told by John Caulfield, a White House aide, that the President was aware of the offers of clemency and "the results of the meeting would be conveyed to the President."

He also said "at a future meeting there would likely be a personal message from the President himself."

"The President's ability to govern is at stake," McCord said Caulfield told him at one of their meetings— "Another Teapot Dome scandal is possible and the government may fall."

McCord said he repeatedly told Caulfield he would not accept the offer.

Caulfield told him the others arrested were going along by pleading guilty or keeping silent but "you are not following the game plan," McCord said.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., chairman of the committee, repeated throughout McCord's testimony that hearsay testimony would not be accepted in a court of law and that the references to Nixon were such second-hand evidence.

McCord said the offer "was conveyed to me in 1973 by John Caulfield to remain silent, take executive clemency by going off to jail quietly and I was told there, I would receive financial aid and later rehabilitation."

Then, McCord said, Caulfield assured him of the President's interest.

The meeting in January was during the time McCord and G. Gordon Liddy were on trial for the June 17, 1972, breakin at Democratic Party headquarters.

McCord and Liddy were the only two of seven persons charged who stood trial. The other five pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy, burglary and illegal wiretapping.

McCord did not say where the meeting took place. He made his statement when committee counsel Sam Dash asked about political pressure applied to the defendants.

McCord told about the meeting with Caulfield and said:

"I was further told at a January meeting in 1973 that the President of the United States was aware of our meeting, that the results of the meeting would be conveyed to the President and at a future meeting there would likely be a personal message from the President himself."

McCord said he got mixed up in the Watergate affair because he was told Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, presidential counsel John W. Dean III and Nixon campaign deputy Jeb S. Magruder had approved it.

McCord, taking the stand in the second day of televised hearings, said he was sorry he had been involved in the affair. He repeated that he had received money after his burglary arrest, and that he was told it came from the Committee for the Re-election of the President and was given in return for his silence.

Speaking slowly, in a husky low voice, the retired Central Intelligence Agency employee said the CIA had in no way been involved in the wiretapping. "Quite the contrary," he said.

The committee's chief counsel, Sam Dash, asked McCord, "Why, after a lifetime of work as a law enforcement officer, without a blemish on your career, did you engage... in a program of burglary and breakin?"

McCord said there were a number of reasons, but "a very important" one was that "the attorney general himself, Mr. John Mitchell, at his office had considered and approved the operation, according to Mr. Liddy." He referred to G. Gordon Liddy, the alleged mastermind of the Watergate raid and one of seven men already convicted for it.

Nixon Didn't Tell All

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III says President Nixon could have said more than he did in his televised Watergate speech, and would have looked better if he had.

But Dean would not elaborate on what disclosures the President could have made in his April 30 speech, saying, "I would rather not get into that now because they were unsaid."

Dean commented on a CBS interview with Walter Cronkite, taped Thursday as the Senate Watergate investigating committee began its public hearings.

Dean said he had no knowledge that Nixon knew in advance of the Watergate breakin, and expressed disappointment that Nixon didn't go further in his speech.

"Now the fact that he gave me what others have called an icy sendoff didn't surprise me. I was fully expecting that... it was that he could have said so much more than he did say," Dean said.

Cronkite asked: "Would the things he said have made him look better?" "I think they would have, yes," Dean replied.

He said he asked a White House aide with access to Nixon to urge the President to "stand tall in this speech and explain some of the things he can explain."

Dean reiterated that he never prepared a report for the President about White House involvement in Watergate, despite Nixon's statement on Aug. 29, 1972, that Dean's investigation had cleared White House aides. The lawyer said, however, that he did look into the burglary of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate office building, but "I wouldn't call it an investigation per se."

"I was aware of certain situations and facts but had I known that my name and a report were going to be put out I would have certainly proceeded differently and asked a lot of questions of people that I didn't ask, never asked," he said.

Earlier Thursday, the Senate Watergate committee, chaired by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., opened televised hearings with testimony from Robert C. Odle, director of administration for the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon was not watching the televised hearings, but receiving reports on them from staff-produced summaries prepared under the direction of Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr.

While the Ervin committee was meeting, the Senate Armed Services Committee, chaired by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., held another closed-door hearing on attempts to involve the CIA in a scheme to halt an FBI investigation into Watergate.

This committee is investigating reports that Dean and former White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman asked CIA Deputy Director Lt. Gen. Vernon Walters to help launch the FBI's probe into the channeling of Republican campaign funds through Mexico. The money later was discovered in the possession of convicted Watergate conspirator Bernard L. Barker.

Testimony Thursday was taken from Walters, former CIA Director Richard Helms and former Deputy Director Gen. Robert E. Cushman. Afterwards Symington told newsmen:

"All the witnesses stated they did not know whether the President knew about it. It's hard for me to visualize the President knew nothing about it."

There were Watergate developments away from Capitol Hill.

Former staff members of the National Security Council said Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's foreign-affairs adviser, was the prime source of leaks to newsmen in 1969 and 1970, at a time when wiretaps were employed to trace the leaks.

Council sources said Kissinger ordered the phonetaps on some of his own aides and newsmen, and provided the names of the men he wanted checked. The sources said at least two newsmen whose telephones were tapped had direct and frequent access to Kissinger.

Taps were reported on telephones of CBS correspondent Marvin Kalb, London Observer correspondent Henry Brandon, Security Council staff members Winston Lord and Morton Halperin, and Kissinger aide Helmut Sonnenfeldt. Only the tap on Halperin's telephone has been confirmed by the Nixon administration.

Hiroshima Offers Aid On Radiation

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The city of Hiroshima, Japan, has offered to help set up a clinic in the United States for radiation victims of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki nuclear attacks.

From 500 to 750 persons who were affected by history's only wartime atomic bombings are believed to be living in the United States, Los Angeles County Coroner Thomas T. Noguchi said Thursday. He was here to address a seminar on criminology.

Noguchi said Japanese officials, including the visiting chairman of the Hiroshima City Council, have told him they are interested in donating the services of scientists for a U.S. radiation clinic.

Japan and Hawaii operate such clinics but there is none in the mainland United States, although the government continues to search for victims, the Japanese-born Noguchi said.

The radiation victims "need a place where they can come in once or twice a year for a check-up and standardized guidance," he said.

"They need social workers, doctors who understand their special problems and psychologists to counsel them. And they have to be bilingual."

Added difficulties are the rising cost of medical care and the fear of being stigmatized by accepting public aid, Noguchi said.

New problems are arising, he said, because many of the children of the radiation victims are getting married now and must ask "the awful question: should we have children?"

Lt. Governor Censured

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida's lieutenant governor has been censured by the House of Representatives for allegedly sending state employees on personal errands.

The House voted 88 to 26 on Thursday to censure Lt. Gov. Tom Adams after a move to impeach him failed by 17 votes. The impeachment tally was 61 to 55, short of the two-thirds needed to send charges against the Democrat to the Senate for trial.

After the censure, Adams said: "If any mistakes were made by me, they were mistakes of the head and not of the heart."

Adams, who served a decade as secretary of state in the 1960s, was charged with sending a $7,800-a-year property clerk on dozens of trips at state expense to pick up supplies for Adams' North Florida farm, of using another state employee as a maid in his apartment and of violating state personnel regulations.

Eyebrows Give Clue To Ervin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just keep your eye on old Sam Ervin's eyebrows.

An occasional twitch, and he's probably bored. But if they start bobbing like cottonballs on the run, he's boring in.

To the lament of the bloodthirsty and the drain upon network advertising revenues, the venerable senator from North Carolina obviously is not going to be rushed—even though he's promised some "new and startling" revelations as his Watergate hearings try peeling away the layers of scandal with the deliberate patience of a mountain whittler.

Instead of accusatory dazzle, there was the methodical but elementary questioning of counsel Samuel Dash. Instead of the hotblooded witnesses seen in this room in times past, there were Robert Odle and Bruce Kehrli, each the typical Nixon man: young, clean-cut, polite, and, with a few lighthearted exceptions, bland. Both, it may be noted, came armed with that favored weapon, an organizational chart.

And for that, the puffy-jowled Ervin was content to lean back, taking in the white glare of the television lights as if it were sunshine on the beach. When he did speak, the words were muffled and, at times, downright clumsy, leaving the uninitiated viewer wondering if the man could ever get it together.

But he is—after all—the acknowledged master at leading the unsuspecting witness into the lion's den, usually charming him along with down-home aphorisms, a grandfatherly smile, and an old habit that borders on the hypnotic: Keep your eye on those eyebrows.

be over by that time.

Serving on the conference committee, which plans to meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday, besides Fries, are Reps. Barney Quiller, D-47 Toledo, and Joseph P. Tulley, R-59 Mentor, and Sens. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, Robert J. Corts, R-13 Elyria, and William H. Mussey, R-14 Batavia.

The House breezed through a two-bill calendar and the Senate passed three measures Thursday before they adjourned for the weekend. The Senate returns Monday afternoon and the House Tuesday morning.

Among proposals receiving House approval was one by Rep. J. Leonard Camera, D-53 Lorain, to require standard medical forms for use in all public schools to provide medical histories of pupils for use in emergencies.

He called it "a bill of rights for children who often are not able to speak for themselves." Other supporters of the legislation, including Rep. Dale Locker, D-80 Anna, a teacher, said doctors and hospitals would be pleased to see uniform forms which have "legal status."

Locker pointed out that some schools presently have medical records on students, but that the forms vary widely with regard to what information they contain.

The bill passed 89-0.

Rep. James Baumann, D-32 Columbus, received the same vote on a bill to shift the handling of state payment of hospital bills for indigents hurt in auto accidents from the Bureau of Motor Vehicles to the Department of Health. Hospitals would continue to reimburse the state for any payments they collect from patients.

Baumann noted that the administration's two-year operating budget contains an appropriation of $4.4 million for the Department of Health to pay hospital claims.

Senators gave their unanimous approval to bills permitting the state Employee Compensation Board to set employ costs for health insurance, and authorizing professional teacher organizations to purchase group term life insurance. Both went to the Senate on a vote of 31-0.

The Senate completed passage of a House bill giving the Elyria and Lorain Municipal Courts each an additional judge.

Lottery Compromise Eludes State Solons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Senate-House conference committee will meet Tuesday to see if a political impasse can be resolved to clear way for a state lottery this year.

Rep. Tom Fries, D-35 Dayton, one of the House conferees, said Thursday he was "not encouraged" at prospects in the wake of Republican demands that any lottery proceeds be used for property tax relief.

He noted that the constitutional amendment removing a ban on lotteries in Ohio — approved by voters May 8 — stated that the proceeds would go into the state's general revenue fund. "The part about the general revenue fund was a Republican amendment," he said.

Bruce Opens Relations With China

TOKYO (AP) — The Chinese have opened their new relationship with the United States with a show of official restraint bordering on coolness. But that doesn't mean anything is wrong between the two countries.

The Chinese unfurled no flags and beat no drums to welcome David K. E. Bruce, who opened a U.S. liaison office in Peking on Monday.

Bruce thus became the first American "ambassador" since the Communists came to power in 1949. Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, noted the historic occasion with a one-paragraph item that neglected to mention who met Bruce.

On Wednesday, Bruce and his deputies—Alfred L. Jenkins of the State Department and John Holdridge, formerly one of Henry A. Kissinger's aides—met with Foreign Minister Chi Peng-fei. Hsinhua noted that with another paragraph.

But the arrival of a Korean art troupe; the return of some Taiwanese fishermen rescued off Fukien in April; mass rallies in Algeria supporting Palestinian guerrillas; and the condemnation, by Prince Norodom Sihanouk's Peking government in exile, of U.S. bombing of Cambodia all got longer treatment from Hsinhua. The bombing story ran to 500 words.

The Chinese appear to want to keep the level of the U.S. mission's public exposure low.

None of this necessarily means that there are any new strains in Chinese-American relations. On the personal level, the members of the mission undoubtedly are being received with courtesy and friendliness.

It is likely that the official restraint stems from Bruce's not being a full-fledged ambassador and the office's not being an embassy.

Once that is remedied, and no one is predicting when, the formal atmosphere probably will warm noticeably.

Accident Injures Grove City Youth

Michael S. Ratliff, 16, Grove City, suffered minor injuries when he lost control of his car for 238 feet Thursday and crashed into an apple tree.

According to Deputy Sheriff Warren Straley, Ratliff was driving northwest on the Williamsport-Crownover Mill Road, about 12:45 p.m., when he left 238 feet of heavy, black skidmarks on the pavement. The car continued out of control and off the right berm 64 feet where it struck the tree.

Ratliff was treated at Fayette Memorial Hospital, Washington C. H., for facial cuts and abrasions, a lacerated left leg, and bumps and bruises. Passenger Dale Thompson, 17, Grove City, was not hurt.

The Knowlton Construction Co., contractor for construction of the joint vocational school, requested a four weeks extension to complete construction. The original completion date was July 2, 1974. He requested an extension to July 28, but Thursday the board granted an extension of one week only.

A change in construction was approved for terrazzo flooring instead of Torginol flooring.

Superintendent Paul Hydell announced the application for construction fund reimbursement from the state department of education has been made. The status of the proposed law enforcement training program is "go" according to Hydell.

The summer vocational guidance seminar will begin July 16 for 20 counselors.

Modern Library Grows Rapidly In Circleville

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the final article of a five-part series that outlines a history of the Pickaway County District Public Library on its 100th anniversary.

By JOY RAE
Pickaway County Library Staff

Since its move to Memorial Hall in 1892, the library has continued to grow steadily in circulation, property, and services. Originally, it occupied one-half of the first-floor area of Memorial Hall. The original rules for government of the library were very strict, and emphasized that "smoking, chewing, and spitting... (were) conduct unbecoming the place."

The library has always been a lively place. Its programs, displays, and services made it an important center of community activity. During World War I, and again during World War II, it was active in a "books for soldiers" campaign which provided reading material for our soldiers on the front, on the bases, and in hospitals.

In 1935 the library extended its services to the residents of the county by means of a bookmobile. This service was discontinued from 1942 to 1949 because of a lack of funds. In 1938 the board of trustees considered opening a historical museum in connection with the library, but did not do so.

In 1944 a new children's room was opened, and the first story-hour programs for children were given. The library joined a film circuit, and thus added the service of loaning films, in 1953.

In 1960, our library's bookmobile service was featured in a Lowell Thomas television documentary entitled, "Lowell Thomas Views Progress in America."

During the years 1964 to 1971, a modern, pleasant atmosphere was created in the library through a series of improvements. These included panelling, new paint, carpeting, a new ceiling, new lighting, and new furniture. The electronic check-out system was added in 1967. In 1968, the loaning period for most books was extended to four weeks.

In 1969 we obtained the reader-printer machine for viewing magazines and newspapers printed on microfilm. In 1971, the service of loaning framed art prints for children and adults was initiated.

In 1971 this library became a member of Ohio Valley Area Libraries, a multi-county organization whose purpose is to provide better library services to citizens of this area.

Today, the library's services include inter-library loans, reference services, and the loaning of recordings, books, pictures, magazines, pamphlets, and 16 mm films. The bookmobile is still very much an important service and makes regular trips throughout the county.

Programs for children and adults are still a regular feature of the library. Our staff of dedicated women are always ready to assist you in finding a book, answering a reference question, and reserving a book from this or other libraries in the state.

Miss Eleanor Craig is now our head librarian. The staff includes Jessie Cummings, Eleanor Hancher, Laura Hutzelman, Patricia Gentzel, and Joy Rae. Jane Jacobs, Elsie Bartholomew, and Chris Morgan serve on the bookmobile staff. Our student workers are Steve Smith, Virginia Johnson, Kris Reid, Cynthia Pike, and Salvave Sylvestre.

Mr. Myron Haradon is now president of the Board of Trustees. Serving with him on the board are: Mrs. Don Collins, Vice President; Mrs. Roger May, Secretary; Mrs. Ray Davis, Mrs. Paul Fenstermaker, Mr. Robert M. Johnson, and Mr. Lemuel Weldon. Frances Houser is the clerk of the Board of Trustees.

From 1873 to 1973, from a staff of one to a staff of 14, from one service to many, from one room to six, from the Pickaway County District Public Library to you — a vital service for free. We hope you enjoy it!

Quilter Ohio's Top Solon Soother

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Barney Quilter is the man with the oil to pour when political waters begin to roil in the Ohio House of Representatives.

Maybe this talent comes from the Toledo Democrat's public relations background, but whatever the source House Speaker A. G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, relies on Quilter when political emotions flare.

There was the House debate the other day on the code of ethics bill. At one point it threatened to evolve into a political dogfight.

Republicans made references to recent scandal alleged to the administration of Gov. John J. Gilligan, a Democrat. Quilter stood up and spoke briefly, making no reference to the allegations.

"This is not a partisan issue," he said. "It's something that affects us all, Democrats and Republicans alike. We ought to pass this bill, and get on

Girl Follows Dad's Path

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Patrolman Kenneth W. Doran comes from a police family, but he figured the string was broken when he wound up with four daughters and no sons.

His 19-year-old daughter, Peggy, however, had other plans. She recently joined the police force as a cadet and plans to become a policewoman when she turns 21.

"I'm tickled to death," Doran admitted. "She told me, 'Daddy, you didn't have any boys, but I can be a policewoman.'"

"I grew up with it," explained Peggy, a 1972 graduate of Eastlake North High School. She plans to take a two-year course in law enforcement at Cuyahoga Community College while she grows up.

Her grandfather, Joseph, and her great-grandfather, James, were both policemen. Two uncles still are policemen, one in Cleveland and one in suburban Cleveland Heights.

Plans Completed For Prom Party

Mr. and Mrs. James McGowan, chairmen of the after-prom party for Circleville students, announced that plans are completed and parents of the junior class are working on the dance preparations.

The party will be held at the fairground coliseum from 1-4 a.m. May 20. Financial contributions in any amount are still needed and may be forwarded to Paul Berrigan, 590 Garden Parkway.

Parents have established rules for attending the event. Students must be checked in by 1:30 a.m. and upon leaving they will be signed out and not permitted to return.

Prizes will be awarded during the evening and there will be refreshments available.

Minutes later, the House passed the bill, 91-6.

Now in his fourth term as state representative, the 53-year-old Quilter is the House majority floor leader, one of the few who has gone by a nickname.

Quilter's parents christened him James Bernard. Friends changed that to Barney during Quilter's amateur boxing days, kidding about his prowess in the ring in the heyday of Barney Ross, world welterweight champion back in the 1930's.

"It's been good luck for me," said Quilter. "Why should I drop it?"

There are those who say Quilter is about ready to make a statewide race.

"If I do," said Quilter, "I'll run as Barney Quilter, not James Bernard."

A lottery for Ohioans may not be in their immediate future, despite the wide margin of votes May 8 in favor of lifting the constitutional ban against one.

Two days after the election, the bill that would create a commission to draft a lottery bill was slowed down in the House.

It passed the Senate before the election. And it passed the House, but without the necessary 66 votes to make it an emergency bill. The emergency clause would make it effective immediately when signed by the governor. Without that, the bill will wait 90 days after the governor signs it before becoming law.

One big obstacle to the bill is allocation of the money. That could jeopardize any approved lottery bill this year. Some lottery opponents

Keep It Locked

Americans do not like to admit they must keep their possessions under lock to prevent them from being stolen, but the man would be foolish indeed who left money or jewels lying around in the open where they could be seen — and taken.

Why, then, is there such hesitancy about locking an automobile? A car is one of the more valuable possessions of the average family. Does it not deserve protection from thieves?

Scoop Jackson

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Senator Henry M. Jackson of the State of Washington has been attracting a good deal of attention from those who insist on making early book on Presidential sweepstakes. The attention is deserved. But the reasons offered for Jackson's 1976 availability fail to do justice to the Jackson character, which is far less opportunistic than appears from the accounts that try to set him up as a person destined to breathe new life into the old Franklin Delano Roosevelt coalition in the Democratic Party.

Ben Wattenberg, an able student of election trends and social statistics, is responsible for projecting the image of Jackson as the likely beneficiary of the coalition revival. Working at Jackson headquarters in Miami Beach last summer, Wattenberg thoroughly enjoyed himself in pointing out, with scathing satirical comment, that George McGovern's "quotas" — the young, the poor, the black and the women's libbers — excluded the rank and file of the Democratic Party.

McGovern made no appeal to labor (AFL-CIO president George Meany couldn't stand him), he had angered the city boss element by his treatment of Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago, his partiality to the blacks and the "new" minorities did not sit well with the Irish, Italian, Polish, Czech and Greek ethnics who had made great economic progress since the Rooseveltian New Deal, and he had ignored the claims of the South. Jackson would have made a far better candidate than McGovern, but the primaries had stacked the convention against common sense.

Now that time has proved Ben Wattenberg's points, the ignored elements of the old Roosevelt coalition are speaking up for Jackson. George Meany endorses Jackson's foreign policy ideas and trusts him on both labor and welfare economics. Chicago's Dick Daley has said, "God willing, he'll be President." Jackson's stand on military preparedness satisfies conservatives, particularly in the South. Jewish liberals would surely support him financially because of the "Jackson amendment" that would deny economic favors to Moscow as long as its stiff emigration tax keeps Jews from going to Israel. The ethnics of East European background, liking Jackson's quid pro quo attitude toward the Communists, would surely vote for him.

Arithmetically, then, Jackson should be the front-runner in a party that needs labor, the South, the Jewish liberals and the city bosses with their ethnic followings if it is to upset the prophets of the "coming Republican

Perhaps part of the answer lies in a false sense of security many car owners have about their vehicles. Few persons condone leaving the key in the ignition, and if the ignition is locked isn't that sufficient safeguard against theft?

Nope. An amateur car thief can cross ignition wires in minutes. And many of them do, to the tune of hundreds of thousands of cars stolen each year.

One of the primary reasons why the largest cities have the highest incidences of crime is the concentration of opportunities for professional and amateur thieves alike, not to mention the teenager out for a thrill. Many autos are taken by the thrill-seekers and abandoned after a night of joyriding, or when the gas tank runs dry.

Locking a car does not guarantee that windows may not be smashed to gain entry, but the crash of broken glass involves a chance of discovery most amateurs would rather not assume. Without the aid of the owners, car thefts will not diminish.

majority." But adding the elements of the old Rooseveltian coalition together, while it may make for impressive statistics, ignores the probability that certain agonizing national issues will be cutting across all the old standardized lines in 1976.

What impresses me about Jackson is that he is alive to dangers that transcend the arithmetic of coalition. The other Democratic hopefuls — Edward Kennedy, Walter Mondale, Ed Muskie — are still predominantly welfare-minded.

Jackson has his own sense of compassion, but, peering into the future, he sees a country that will be tormented less by welfare needs than by a snowballing energy crisis. Jackson has been talking about stockpiling oil. When the other prominent Democrats were repeating the cliches of the ecologists, Jackson was questioning what the environmental zealots were doing to make it difficult for people to earn enough money to live in any environment, good or bad. Jackson would not be oblivious to the need for clean water and clean air, but he would move ahead with economic development first and find ways of making it ecologically safe as we go along.

He would, in short, keep the country strong, free and economically venture-some. It is the venture note that the majority of the Presidential book-makers ignore when they rate Scoop Jackson's chances.

Business World

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's home study student is "more aware and responsible and has a greater intention of finishing his courses than the student of 10 years ago," said the director of the National Home Study Council.

And matching him in each respect, contends the director, William Fowler, are the sellers of home study courses. For one thing, he said, "the schools are more responsible in the students they enroll."

Thus, according to NHSC, whose membership consists of 188 accredited schools with 1.5 million students, some of the most serious problems, perhaps better described as defects, are being ameliorated.

As a result, Fowler said, "The students are learning more and completing more." The completion ratio of about one in four compares favorably with many colleges and exceeds the ratio of some open admission community colleges.

There has always been a great number of very highly motivated students in such courses, which go by the name of home study or extension or correspondence or independent study courses. But a lot of dreamers too.

The typical abuse was to enroll an individual possessed of more hope than dedication, more ambition than ability. And, in fact, many home study courses advertised, and some still do, the dream rather than the details.

But efforts of the Federal Trade Commission and the Veterans Administration and other government agencies have probably reduced the instances.

But the council also claims credit, having withdrawn accreditation from about 20 members since it took on the job 18 years ago, although some of those dropped from membership quickly regained their status.

Counting courses offered by universities, professional organizations, business, religious groups and governments, it is estimated that more than five million Americans are studying at home.

Fowler can list many reasons for their popularity, among them:

—The school comes to the student, the student learns at his own pace, he can fit study time around jobs and other activities, he can emphasize what he wants, he pays only for wanted courses, he has the instructor's complete attention, he has constant feedback.

Rapid technological changes also require skilled workers to continue their education on the job.

A Carnegie Corp. study shows that craftsmen and foremen make more extensive use of correspondence courses than any other nonmilitary groups, followed in order by professional and technical workers, and high school diploma seekers.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Is it possible to predict some diseases long before they occur?

Since we have computers and other modern scientific instruments wouldn't this be a great scientific boon to mankind if it could happen?

Mr. W.D., Del.

Dear Mr. D.:

Modern medicine has learned much from the study of statistics. As far back as the end of the 17th century it was known that the life expectancy in Germany was about 33 years. From then on, these life-expectancy rates increased to about 43 years in the middle of the 19th century.

Today, in privileged, developed countries, the life-span of expectancy of a newborn child is more than 70 years.

These figures, of course, vary with levels of society, hygienic conditions, and the state of nutrition. Underprivileged areas, unfortunately, have a life expectancy that is far below these.

All of these statistics are taken into consideration in the predictability of disease.

The science of epidemiology can, with remarkable success, indicate the effects of epidemics and the destruction of health they leave in their wake.

Data-processing devices can now take into consideration factors like heredity, genetics, emotional, physical, and chemical variables to predict the possible onset of disease.

When into a computer are fed the age, height, weight, alcohol and cigarette indulgence, fatty foods, drugs, occupation, and emotional stress, important predictions for health can be determined.

Predictability and prevention are different, yet they depend on each other for sustained good health. The computer can, in fact, outline the need for exercise, the need to change one's occupational habits, the need to enjoy more leisure, the need to reverse eating habits, and the ways that these can be accomplished.

Many scientists all over the world are accumulating techniques to delay the processing of the aging. Predictability and preventive methods will eventually raise longevity statistics.

Can an infection of the ear affect the taste? This is what has happened to me.

Miss T.G., Ind.

Dear Miss G.:

It sounds strange, but it is entirely possible. A tiny nerve, the "chordatumpani," lies within the middle ear. This nerve has a very definite influence on taste.

Long-standing infections of the ear and radical mastoid surgery may destroy the nerve, and therefore alter taste on that side. Total taste is not destroyed because other nerves, unrelated to the ear, play an important role in the preservation of taste.

Death Jokes
Not Funny
To Official

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Late-night talk show host Johnny Carson was joking on television about the American way of death in general and Nashville's high-rise mausoleum in particular.

An official of Woodlawn Memorial Park, the proprietors of the mausoleum, jokingly offered to process the NBC star through this mortuary's crematorium.

The exchange began last month when Carson, quoting from an Associated Press story about Woodlawn's new 20-story mausoleum, included several wisecracks about death and morticians in his nightly monolog.

That led to a full-page advertisement in Nashville's morning newspaper, the Tennessean, in which the Woodlawn proprietors chided Carson for his attitude.

"Death Is No Joking Matter," the ad declared.

"I didn't mean anything disrespectful ..." Carson replied to the ad on his show Wednesday night. "You know they (morticians) are going to have the last laugh anyway."

Southern Presbyterians In Basic Conflict

NEW YORK (AP) — Subtle, festering conflicts, about as tangled as those infecting some contentious Southern family in a William Faulkner novel, are building toward a climax among Southern Presbyterians.

The bitterness has produced a sort of "shell shock" throughout the Presbyterian Church in the U.S., says its moderator, the Rev. Dr. L. Nelson Bell, of Montreal, N.C. The anguished struggle has spilled into lawsuits and meetings, into periodicals and appeals, and it raised the shadow of schism over the million-member denomination on the eve of its annual governing assembly.

Three weeks before that event June 9-15 in Fort Worth, Tex., amid oddly ambivalent emotions and extraordinary rebuffs, a group of conservatives were meeting this weekend in Atlanta, Ga., to plan a separate denomination.

"It's an unfortunate, complex situation that has put a strain on many long-time emotional ties," says the Rev. Donald B. Patterson, of Jackson, Miss., chairman of a steering committee that arranged the Atlanta breakaway meeting.

He estimated close to 300 local congregations — out of about 4,000 in the 112-year-old denomination born of the Civil War — are taking part in the initial planning for a separate church.

They object to the present denomination's efforts toward reuniting with Northern Presbyterians, to its stands on various social issues, to asserted doctrinal trends in it, and to its involvement in cooperative bodies such as the National Council of Churches.

But more delicate factors such as future intentions, ecclesiastical manners and questions of trust ran deeper.

Dr. Bell, a long-time conservative himself and the father-in-law of Southern Baptist evangelist Billy Graham, says the rift jeopardizes conservative strength in the Church by "fragmentation and discord."

As an off-shoot of the controversy, Michael L. Carr Jr. a state judge of Brookhaven, Miss., withdrew as nominee to the denomination's highest elective office as moderator, a rare shunning of the Church's most honored post.

Antioch Faculty
Faces Furlough

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio (AP) — Antioch College faculty members honoring a student strike here have been told they will be "furloughed without pay" beginning May 31, if they don't start holding classes.

Students set up picket lines around campus buildings April 20 protesting the financial aids procedures at the college. They are demanding the college guarantee needy students financial assistance over a four-year period.

Why? Noting that his own congregation, Brookhaven's First Presbyterian church, was among those hosting the Atlanta breakaway session, he says his nomination to the denomination's top office would put him in an embarrassing position.

Twenty-nine other congregations that set up the Atlanta meeting — most of them in Alabama, others in Mississippi, Florida and Virginia — already have cut ties with the denomination, although property rights have become a court issue in Virginia.

30 YEARS OF CARING — Mrs. Della Wertman is shown receiving a trophy presented by her daughters, Mrs. Bill Lockard, on the left and Mrs. David Bircher, on the right, for her 30 years as 4-H Club adviser. Mrs. Wertman has given her time teaching girls to sew because she cares about them and believes in the 4-H Club program.

Mrs. Della Wertman Honored For Service With 4-H Clubs

Mrs. Della Wertman, 213 N. Pickaway St., was the honored guest at the Mother and Daughter Tea at the Grange and 4-H building recently. The Sew Straight Teenettes provided for their adviser, a corsage and trophy for her 30 years of service to the 4-H Club program.

Mrs. Wertman first became an adviser in 1943 with a group of nine girls. Her largest group was 61 girls. Over the years the Sew Straight Teenettes have won many awards and trophies. Among the most outstanding individuals were Jane Mader, Fair Queen, Lynn Rickey, Safety Contest winner, and Vanessa Hatfield, Pumpkin Show Queen.

The club has consistently won many blue ribbons at the County Fair and received first place for the best decorated booth three years in succession. One of the out-standing tours Mrs. Wertman has taken with her club was a trip to Canada in 1953.

Mrs. Wertman has truly given help from her heart, her hands and her health for all her girls in the 4-H program and as the girls continue to give the 4-H pledge they can be thankful that leaders like her have helped them understand the pledge.

As a surprise for Mrs. Wertman all the past presidents that could be contacted were and many responded with their presence. They greeted her with good wishes, cards and gifts. The past presidents and a former adviser sat with Mrs. Wertman to enjoy the remainder of the program as Miss Terry Chelikowsky presided as mistress of ceremonies.

The girls and their mothers were welcomed and new officers presented were: Terry Chelikowsky, president; Audry May, vice president; Tammy Davis, secretary and Karen Baker, treasurer.

Audry May, in charge of entertainment, introduced Rita Gulick who read a short story entitled "Mothers." The next act was a flute trio with Julie Kazmeirczak, Terry Chelikowsky and Audry May, accompanied on the piano by Barbara Painter, a friend of the club. Kim

Atomic Explosion May Free Gas

RIO BLANCO, Colo. (AP) — A nuclear device as powerful as 90,000 tons of TNT awaited detonation today a mile under the Colorado Rockies in an effort to shake loose vast stores of natural gas.

The device's three 30-kiloton atomic mechanisms were to be exploded simultaneously in the largest nuclear blast so far in the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) project to stimulate trillions of cubic feet of natural gas locked in rock formations. The device has more than four times the explosive power of the atomic bomb dropped over Hiroshima, Japan, at the end of World War II.

The AEC and a private company — CER Geonuclear Corp. of Las Vegas, Nev. — are sponsoring the blast in a sparsely populated area on the Western Slope of the Rockies about 180 miles west of Denver.

United Methodist Church is "My God And I." Youth Fellowship meets 6:30 p.m. The evening sermon topic for the Evangelistic Service is "Foolish Men."

An Instructed Eucharist will be held this Sunday 10:30 a.m. in St. Philip's Episcopal Church. This is part of the preparation of candidates for confirmations. The Holy Eucharist will also be celebrated at 8:15 a.m. A rehearsal for readers in the Youth Sunday Service will be held 6 p.m. Sunday.

Energy Crisis Long-Lasting, SAE Told

DETROIT (AP)—The most damaging effect of the current energy crisis on manufacturing will come in the area of long-term planning, the Society of Automotive Engineers was told Wednesday.

Sheldon Taft of Columbus, Ohio, counsel for the Ohio Manufacturers Association, said firms will be forced to postpone capital spending.

"Right now, how do you know whether to build, where to build or whether to convert to some other source of energy?" he asked.

Taft said natural gas production is at its peak but demand will continue to grow.

"I find it hard to believe that demand and supply will ever come into balance," he said.

He estimated the total national shortage of natural gas will be between one and two trillion cubic feet. Total current production is 25 trillion cubic feet.

If consumption patterns remained the same, the shortage will grow to 40 per cent of production by 1985, he said.

Taft said no plant can be built today that relies on any one source of energy because of the possibility of a shortage.

When someone shares a secret, it's on its way to becoming no secret at all. And yet it doesn't cease to be a secret until you have shared it.

When Jesus preached in the wilderness, hundreds came miles to hear Him. They wanted to share His secret . . . the secret of God . . . the secret of Man and God.

So right there in the wilderness, it was on its way to becoming no secret at all. Except that, even today, not everyone has shared it.

Academically every intelligent person knows what Christianity is all about. But each Sunday all over this world someone is finding in church a new strength, a new purpose, a new faith. For the heart of Christ's message brings a human soul into harmony with a mighty and loving God . . . whose power gives our lives direction . . . whose concern gives our lives meaning.

The secret that was is still a secret, until YOU share it too.

Tangents

On Books And Activities At The Library

We were afraid it might happen, and it did. We mentioned skink in last week's Tangents, and sure enough it ended up as skunk. A skink is not a skunk. Anyone wanting advice on skunks as pets will not find the information in Jack Kramer's "Pets and Plants in Miniature Gardens." A skink is a kind of lizard, and would be suitable for life in a miniature garden. However, skunks do make loveable and intelligent pets. If you are interested in reading about skunks as pets, you can find information in an older title, "Wild Pets" by Robert Franklin Leslie.

Books appear in response to reader interest. Indians — information about them, their life yesterday — today — tomorrow, their culture, art, religion — are the subject of many recent books. The latest title received at the library is "The Mystic Warriors of the Plains" by Thomas E. Mails. Mr. Mails details the life of the Plains Indians while they were yet untouched by the white man's progress into the area. Chapters cover daily life activities, social customs, government, religion, crafts and warfare and tools of war. The book is illustrated with hundreds of drawings by the author, and some color plates.

Police officers are receiving their share of the publishers' attention. "Law and Order" written by Dorothy Uhnak, former policewoman, is a novel of a New York Irish family. Three generations of this family served on the police force. The story opens with the violent death of Sgt. Brian O'Malley, under compromising circumstances. Fellow officers zealously cover up for the good of the force and the sake of the family. Son Brian also becomes a policeman. The climax is reached when Brian's son, Patrick, joins the force and clashes with authority. Not for the conservative.

"The Great Bridge" by David McCullough is an interesting account of the building of the Brooklyn Bridge by the Roeblings. Those who despair over the Watergate affair, may take heart at this monumental reminder of the moral integrity of the Roeblings in the era of the villainous Boss Tweed and his cronies. This title was highly recommended by Dr. Ray Carroll, who donated it to the library.

Many Pickaway Countians are interested in trapping. "Animal Traps and Trapping" by James A. Bateman is a new comprehensive study. Chapters cover the historical background, all kinds of traps — insect, bird, fish, large and small mammals. It examines proper choice of bait, site of trap, and application of traps for vermin control. The final chapter concerns the ethics of trapping.

"Airships" by Robert Jackson is a history of lighter-than-aircraft. It recounts stories of the tragedies that overtook the Hindenburg, the Shenandoah, the Akron, the Macon, the Italia, and the Graf Zeppelin. Illustrated with black and white photos.

"The Labor Wars" by Sidney Lens is an account of the bloody and violent battles that were part of the growth of the American labor unions from the violence of the "Molly Maguires" through the sit-down strikes of the thirties.

Perhaps the late night movies contribute to the interest in older movies. "The Films of James Cagney" by Homer Dickens is fun to browse through for movie fans, Cagney fans, or those who wish for a glimpse backward through the fascinating film photographs. This is similar in format to "The Films of Katherine Hepburn" by the same author.

"Cactus Country" in the Time-Life American Wilderness Series contains beautiful color photographs of the desert country and its flowering vegetation. Those interested in desert animals will find colorful drawings and information about the water misers like the Gila monster, the kangaroo rat, the javelina, the road-runner, etc.

For investors and would be investors, the library has subscribed to Moody's Investor's Service. Available in the reference room are: Moody's Industrial News Reports; The Stock Survey; Moody's Bond Survey; and Moody's Handbook of Common Stocks. News Reports for Public Utility, Transportation, Bank and Finance, as well as the 1972 Manuals are also available. We have had many requests for this type of service. We hope you will use it. When you make your fortune, don't forget to remember the library in your will!

Lukens Case Argument Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court has set oral arguments next Wednesday on State Sen. Donald L. "Buzz" Lukens' arguments that he should be permitted to be a Republican candidate for governor or U.S. Senator next year.

Lukens, of Middletown, was ruled off any ballot by Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, who said he failed to file his expense statement from his last state senate campaign on time.

Brown acted under an Ohio law that says candidates who do not file within 45 days of the election cannot seek public office for five years.

Lukens countered that he did mail the statement but it was not received or recorded by the Butler County Board of Elections.

Lukens said he mailed a second statement — received 12 days after the deadline — after the board notified him they hadn't received the first one.

Kleindienst To Speak

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Former U.S. Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst will speak at Ohio Wesleyan University Wednesday as part of the Memorial Union program.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Loss Of Friend Causes Her To Feel Guilty

DEAR ABBY: I recently lost a very good friend, and the world lost a beautiful, sensitive woman of 31 who, after separating from her husband, did away with herself and her two precious children.

She confided her unhappiness to me a few years ago, and I let her unburden herself by the hour. It seemed to help her. However, in the last few months I had gotten out of close touch with her because, like so many, I was too busy to have her over.

The last time we talked on the phone, she said: "Let's get together soon." Then I put it off until it was too late.

She needed my friendship more desperately than I knew. So many people attended her funeral. But where were they when she needed them. And where was I? Wrapped up in my own little world with my own petty problems.

This has been a hard-earned lesson from which I hope to profit in the future. Abby, please tell your readers that tomorrow might be too late to offer friendly help. Had I not been so selfish I might have saved the lives of two innocent children, and their mother who must have felt that no one really cared if she lived or died.

SAD AND GUILTY
DEAR GUILTY: While listening to a friend unburden herself may be an act of friendship, it doesn't provide the therapy a deeply disturbed person requires. You don't say whether your friend sought psychiatric help, but if she had not, you might have helped her more by pointing out how desperately she needed it. Your friend was more than "unhappy," she was mentally ill. Sad? Yes. Guilty? No.

DEAR ABBY: I just received an offer from a gentleman. He wants me to move into his apartment and pay half the rent. All I would have to do would be the housekeeping. He thinks it's a good deal for me because he has a color TV, a waterbed, and a microwave oven. What do you think of his offer?

MITZIE
DEAR MITZIE: As I see it, in exchange for your bed and board you'd have to pay half his rent and do all the housekeeping. If you want a color TV waterbed, and microwave oven, you'd be ahead to buy them. He doesn't mention the sleeping arrangements, but if he plans on doubling up, ask him if he considers that an incentive for you or him.

DEAR ABBY: My husband divorced me last December, and now he says he wants his rings back. Should I return the rings, or am I entitled to keep them? I once heard that possession is nine points of the law. Does that still hold true?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: I made a deal with the legal profession: They won't write advice columns, and I won't practice law. Ring up your lawyer and ask him what to do about your rings.

Turn Down Arrest Suit

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Former Miami of Ohio University student Gary M. Sidell had his $210,000 suit against four sheriff's deputies turned down Thursday in U.S. District Court.

Sidell, of Buffalo, N.Y., was seeking $52,500 from each of the deputies, whom he contended beat him during the campus disturbances at Miami University in May, 1970.

A jury ruled for the defendants by a 9-3 vote in Judge Timothy Hogan's court.

The four Butler County Sheriff's deputies are Howard Cook, Tom Deaton, Larry Castator and Gene Parker, all of Hamilton.

The suit was filed in May, 1971.

Corporate Profit Boom Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The country's economic boom resulted in near-record corporate profits during the first quarter of the year, the Commerce Department reported today.

It said before-tax profits of corporations increased $11.6 billion to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $113.1 billion in the first quarter, second highest increase in the country's history. After-tax earnings rose $5.1 billion to an annual rate of $62.3 billion.

The increase in before-tax profits trailed only the increase of $11.7 billion in the first quarter of 1971, a post-recession period.

However, the Nixon administration is concerned over the rapid growth of the economy and hopes to moderate the economic boom, which could have a dampening effect on corporate profits later in the year.

Shriners To Observe Hospital Day Sunday

More than 14,000 members of Aladdin Temple are joining nearly 900,000 of their fraternity brothers Sunday observance of International Shrine Hospital Day. The Pickaway Shrine Club is under the jurisdiction of Aladdin Temple, Columbus.

The universal celebration was proclaimed by Henry B. Struby of Evansville, Indiana, Imperial Potentate of the Ancient Accepted Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

He said the day will mark the 51st year the red-fuzzed Shriners have been building and operating hospitals for free treatment of children from all over the world.

Although the local observance will be quiet, special parties have been arranged at each of the Shrine's 19 orthopedic hospitals and three burns institutes.

In addition, the 172 Shrine Temples in the United States, Canada and Mexico have planned open houses, pageantry, special programs of distribution of literature at civic and service club meetings during the month of May to call attention to "the world's greatest philanthropy."

Donald T. Back, Illustrious Potentate of Aladdin Temple, said the charitable efforts are financed by dues assessments, gifts, contributions and bequests by both Shriners and non-Shriners, and revenues from such events as the Ohio Shrine Football Bowl, local Shrine Club benefits, temple-sponsored activities and the nationally acclaimed sports undertakings.

"Our hospitals are operated on the philosophy 'where love comes first'. Personnel assist their young charges (ages to 15) with their studies, recreation, hobbies, clothing, barbering, dental care, braces, crutches and medical treatment, without cost to the family," Aladdin's leader explained.

Regular school classes are held so the child can keep up with his or her educational requirements.

Back noted that more than 164,000 children have been cured or materially aided since the first Shrine hospital began operating September 16, 1922, at Shreveport, Louisiana.

Training of future orthopedists goes hand-in-hand with medical treatment. A third of all active orthopedists in the nation served internships or had some training in a Shriners hospital, he estimated.

Research undertaken by staff members has enriched the world's knowledge of both burns treatment and the repair of deformities.

Back listed some of the more recent fruits of Shrine hospital research as a "skin bank" for storage of human skin, making it possible to save skin for grafts as long as six months; redesigned beds and appliances as well as reconstructive surgery for burned patients; "germ free" wards; combating the lung syndrome of burns patients; work in spina-bifida (brittle bones), and use of the laser beams in surgery.

Medical treatment without charge comes dearly for the Shrine. Back said the budget this year for operation of the organization's 22 hospital units amounts to some $28 million.

Orthopedic cases cost an average of $1,700 each. Burns treatment is much more expensive, running to between $10,000 and $12,000 on an average (and one case cost $100,000).

Annual case load of the 19 orthopedic hospitals is impressive. Last year, for example, the Shriners Hospitals gave free medical treatment to 30,800 actual patients, performed 263,850 surgical techniques, and applied 169,500 braces and 662,000 casts.

Since the first Shriners Burns Institute was opened at Galveston, Texas, in 1966, the three specialized burns hospitals for children have had more than 3,000 admissions.

Shriners assess themselves $5 a year for the hospital program, or more than $70,000 annually in Aladdin's central-southeastern jurisdiction alone, Aladdin's potentate said.

Locally, children who are approved for treatment are sent to either the Crippled Children's Hospital at 1900 Richmond Avenue, Lexington, Kentucky, or to the Burns Institute at 202 Goodman Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

In addition, Aladdin Temple Shriners support their own treatment program through the Aladdin Crippled Children's Hospital Association, Inc. Clinics are held at Riverside Methodist Hospital each Wednesday morning for examination of potential patients.

Standards for admission are the same for both the local and national programs. A Shriner may make application for treatment of a little patient (infancy to 15 years of age, of any race, creed or nationality) on forms obtainable at office of the Shrine recorder. Final decision on acceptance of a patient is made by a hospital's Board of Governors or the local association, according to where the application was submitted.

Hospital Administrator Speaks To Rotarians

John Reid, administrator of Berger Hospital, was the speaker at Circleville Rotary meeting noon Thursday at the L-K Restaurant.

Reid, who holds masters degrees in business administration and hospital administration, discussed plans to upgrade Berger facilities to meet Federal and state requirements.

The long range building program will begin in January 1974. The first phase is expected to be completed by January 1975. Reid stated that Pickaway County has the highest rate of heart disease per capita in Ohio and much improvement is needed in the local facilities.

He explained that much community and industry support will be needed for the project.

Guests at the Rotary meeting were Paul Mungerson and Art Dick.

County Farmers Eligible For FHA Emergency Loans

On May 9, Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz announced that 74 Ohio counties including Pickaway have been designated as areas where farm emergency loans may be made by the Department of Agriculture's Farmers Home Administration to restore farm operations damaged by natural disaster in 1972.

The need for emergency credit is based on crop losses suffered due to excessive rain, with flooding in some areas, during the 1972 fall planting and harvesting seasons. Some counties also suffered from drought in mid-year, or from hailstorms or extreme temperature changes that damaged fruit trees. Lorain County sustained tornado damage in July 1972.

The secretarial designation means that in the counties listed, Farmers Home Administration County Offices may make loans to restore farm operations or replace equipment and farm service installations lost through a specified natural disaster. As a condition of eligibility for a loan, an applicant must be shown to have no other means of recovery or source of credit. Loans are repayable in their entirety at an interest rate of 5 percent.

Loan applications will be received through July 6, 1973, at the local Farmers Home Administration Office.

76-Year-Old Ross Farmer Is Peace Corps Worker

At an age when most people are content to sit back and relax, Leon Winger, 76-year-old retired Ohio farmer, is helping to build and run a vocational trade school on the Galapagos Islands, 600 miles off the coast of Ecuador.

Winger, one of the oldest men in the Peace Corps, ran his family's cattle and pig farm in Ross County, near Chillicothe, for almost 60 years before becoming a volunteer.

He has completed the customary two years of volunteer service, and is vacationing in the United States before returning to the Islands for another year's service.

"There's just too many things left to do down there," he told Peace Corps staffers in Washington.

Leon was born on Elm Spring Stock Farm in 1897. At 13 he started working on the farm and at 19 took over full management.

Over the next 54 years he taught himself to design and construct buildings, make furniture and install plumbing and electrical wiring, and by the time he joined the Peace Corps in October, 1970 he was as skilled a tradesman as 60 years of practical experience could make him.

Destined to be an agricultural specialist, Leon found himself involved in an entirely different area. An avid nature lover, he paid a visit to the Galapagos Islands, the internationally famed conservation area off the coast of Ecuador.

There he met a Portland, Ore. philanthropist, L. E. Binford, who was busy constructing a new school for the Islands' inhabitants. The two men formed an instant friendship and Binford obtained Peace Corps permission to employ Leon to design and construct housing for the teachers, build benches for the school workshops, make chairs for the auditorium and set up an industrial arts workshop.

Although there's plenty to keep him busy at the school, there's no keeping the country out of Leon. Visiting the Islands' cattle farmers he found they were handicapped in their desire to improve their herds by the total ban on the importation of cattle. So on his vacation in the U.S., Leon is trying to arrange for an artificial insemination program in the Galapagos.

When Leon's work ends at the Galapagos School, he will start constructing another school in the Island's Highlands. There he plans to set up demonstration gardens to inspire the students to become involved in more productive farming methods.

Serving others is a tradition in the Winger family. Leon's daughter Barbara has taught music and English for the past 14 years at a missionary school in Pucallpa, Peru.

One of Leon's many tasks during his two-month vacation is to find a publisher for a book he has written

Truck Driver Killed

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A truck driver, Robert Clark, 54, of suburban Cleves, was killed Thursday when the gravel truck he was unloading overturned and rolled into a creek.

The sable-fish, although not a true cod fish, is sometimes called black cod, coalfish or skillfish.

about his work in the Peace Corps. Entitled "Life Begins At 73" it is a witty, folksy account of the adventures and challenges of being a septegenarian volunteer in an organization whose average is 27.

Leon lives on a 30-foot boat anchored in the harbor at Santa Cruz. If visitors can't afford a hotel room he invites them to stay on board. "We got three inns — for $2, $6 or $20 a night — but my place is free," he chuckles.

Delighted with his service in the Peace Corps, Leon claims to have knocked off "20 pounds and 20 years" since becoming a volunteer.

Leon is one of five Peace Corps volunteers on the Galapagos Islands. Two others are seeking ways to halt the killing of the islands' famed giant tortoises by rats, one is helping design an ecological conservation museum for the Charles Darwin Research Foundation and one teaches mathematics, electronics and industrial arts at Leon's school.

The Peace Corps, with about 7000 volunteers in 59 developing countries, is part of ACTION, the citizens service corps established by President Nixon in July, 1971 to administer federal volunteer programs at home and overseas. Michael P. Balzano, Jr. is director of ACTION.

ACTION's domestic programs are Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), Foster Grandparent Program, Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE), Active Corps of Executives (ACE), Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) and University Year for ACTION (UYA).

Urban Soil Erosion Is Increasing Problem

Urban soil erosion is increasing, according to Don Archer, district conservationist of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS) in Circleville.

Urban soil erosion occurs when vegetative cover is absent. It is especially noticeable in areas where new homes and buildings are under construction. Raw construction areas are a source of tons of sediment which pollute our streams and rivers, Archer noted.

Note Breakthrough In Cancer Search

BAR HARBOR, Maine (AP) — Jackson Laboratory scientists report discovery of a major cause of two types of cancer in mice that may give an important clue as to how man develops the disease.

Dr. Hans Meier, a senior staff scientist, said Wednesday his research team has what is believed to be the first direct biological proof linking specific viral genetic information that's passed on through inheritance to the formation of cancer.

He said the viral cancer mechanism is a good indication as to what might happen in man, but solid evidence remains to be uncovered.

"I consider our findings a major breakthrough in solving the cancer riddle," said Meier in a telephone interview from the world's largest center of mammalian genetics research.

The evidence of the Meier research team supports the idea that all offspring inherit latent genetic information, or traits, for Type-C RNA viruses which when "switched on" transform normal cells into tumor cells. RNA is the genetic factor that carries information from one cell to another.

Meier said type-C RNA viruses are known to exist in 12 species of animals, including hamsters, apes and other primates.

"Type-C has been found occasionally in man," he added. "That's why there's no reason to think man is an exception" to inheriting the dormant genetic information that can give rise to cancer.

The studies were done with two inbred strains of lab mice and showed the presence of an inborn set of viral genes — a genome — that Meier says is the "major determinant of at least leukemias and reticulum cell sarcomas and perhaps all cancer types." One mice strain was leukemia prone; the other had a low incidence of reticulum cell sarcomas but otherwise was cancer resistant.

spring of the year include oats and ryegrass. Oats, Sudangrass, or ryegrass give good cover during the summer months. Rye, wheat or ryegrass have worked well in the fall months according to Archer.

There are several grasses which make good permanent cover. Probably the best known is Kentucky bluegrass with a wide range of adaptability. Another fine bladed grass is creeping red fescue. Its best use is in shady areas.

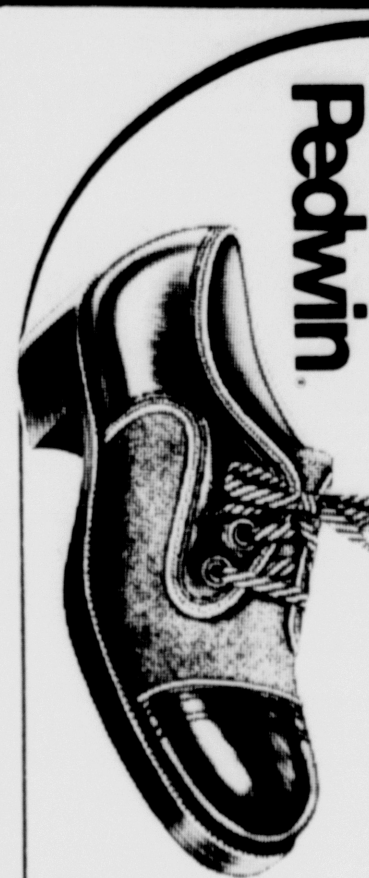

A coarse bladed grass that has many uses in controlling erosion is tall fescue. Tall fescue may be used on steep slopes where vegetation is hard to establish, as well as play areas with heavy foot traffic.

Crownvetch is a plant that does well on steep, critical, hard to maintain areas around shopping centers. It provides excellent cover and from June to August produces a heavy set of pretty purple flowers.

Getting the desired results from any of these plants requires a high level of management which includes seedbed preparation, fertilization, liming and mulching, Archer points out.

Additional information on vegetating urban areas may be obtained by contacting the local soil and water conservation office, 1440 North Court Street, Circleville, Ohio.

GTE Announces Cable Addition Near Ringgold

General Telephone Co. of Ohio announced today the completion of a major cable addition for growth in the Circleville exchange.

William D. Anderson of Circleville, customer service manager, said the $49,500 expansion will provide for upgrading present services and for future growth in the area.

The new cable will boost facilities in the areas of the Glenbrook subdivision and the village of Ringgold. Portions of the new cable will be used to replace existing facilities for maintenance reasons.

"Where possible, the cable was buried," said Anderson. "This enhances the natural beauty of the landscape and reduces service outages caused by severe weather conditions and automobile accidents."

The Circleville exchange serves 11,241 telephones in a 187.4 square-mile area of Pickaway and Fairfield counties.

Gold Prices Edge Higher

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold edged up slightly on European markets today, and the U.S. dollar dropped a bit. Dealers said trading was quiet.

Bullion dealers widened their trading margins in advance of weekend uncertainties. Gold opened in London in a trading range of $103.50 to $106 an ounce, up $2.50 from Thursday's closing. Normally the spread between bid and asked prices is 50 cents to $1 at the most.

The price in Zurich was unchanged at $105 an ounce.

On the Frankfurt foreign exchange, the dollar dropped one pfennig to 2.78 marks. It also was down fractionally in Zurich, to 3.1550 Swiss francs, compared with Thursday's 3.1565 francs.

In London, the pound edged up from $2.5490 to $2.5510.

New Officer Joins State Patrol Post

PTL. LANNY NORTH

Ptl. Lanny North, a Nelsonville native, is the newest officer to join the Circleville Post of the Ohio State Patrol.

Ptl. North recently completed 30 weeks training at the Patrol Academy, Columbus, and was sent here for his first assignment.

He will join 30 other officers, on regular patrol, that are responsible for Pickaway, Franklin and Madison Counties.

Ptl. North lives at Route 1, Stoutsville, with his wife Karen Shields North and their son, Jeffrey, 6-months.

Prior to enrolling with the Academy, he served two years with the United States Army in Germany.

Senate Panel Approves Curb On War Powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee unanimously has approved a bill that would prevent a president from committing U.S. troops abroad for more than 30 days without congressional approval.

The measure, identical to one passed by the Senate last year, would not apply to present hostilities and therefore would not require a halt to the bombing in Cambodia, said its sponsor, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y.

But it would prevent re-introduction of U.S. military activity in Vietnam or Laos without congressional approval.

A House Foreign Affairs subcommittee has approved a bill to prohibit commitment or enlargement of forces in hostilities abroad for longer than 120 days without approval of Congress.

Present World Gold System 50 Years Old

NEW YORK (AP) — Worldwide attention turned this past week to the esoteric community that deals in a bright and corrosion-resistant metal with the atomic number 79.

A monetary milestone was being marked: The price of that metal, gold, surpassed $100 U.S. dollars an ounce.

But what are the workings of the marketplace in which the landmark was passed? Who buys and sells gold? Where, and how? And, perhaps most important, why?

From conversations with government officials, dealers in precious metals and businessmen who make their living distributing gold and shaping it into commercial forms like rings and dental fillings emerges the picture that follows:

Dealing in gold dates back to the earliest recorded civilizations, which worked it with enthusiasm into everything from ornaments and arrowheads to chalices, crowns and coins.

Gold was bought and sold in auction markets as early as the fairs of the 12th and 13th centuries.

Today's basic system of gold markets, centered in London and Zurich but extending to many other places, has been in existence about 50 years.

"You'd probably get an argument from the Swiss on this, but London is the 'bell cow,'" one gold man says.

It is there that representatives of five leading bullion merchants meet twice a day. Consulting their lists of buy and sell orders, they arrive at the "fixing"—a price which at least theoretically balances demand and supply at that moment.

The price is not truly "fixed." The market is said to be a very free one, subject to shifting pressures at any moment. But the London fixing is transmitted around the world on financial news wires, and it has a major influence.

In most countries except the United States, anyone can buy or sell gold from anyone else. But the London merchants and a group of three Swiss banks in Zurich are the centers of activity.

As in any other commodities-trading arena, there are two basic types of buyers: those who seek gold for commercial purposes and the speculators.

Most observers agree it is impossible to tell how many fall into each group. They point out that the commercial buyers by their very participation in the market are putting themselves in a position of speculating. If they believe the price will come down, they are likely to buy sparingly and operate on their inventories. If they believe the price will rise, they probably will "stock up" like a housewife at a sale.

If the traders in gold are difficult to identify, the sources of supply are much more easily discerned. According to U.S. Bureau of Mines figures for 1971, the latest data available, South Africa produces two-thirds of the world output of close to 50 million troy ounces per year.

The Soviet Union, second on the list, was estimated to have accounted for about 14 per cent; Canada, five per cent; and the United States, three per cent.

The major source, South Africa, keeps some of its gold in reserve and sells the remainder in the free market. One observer says it was keeping about a third of its production as of a few months ago but lately has been holding on to a much smaller amount.

Observers report that the gold sold by South Africa customarily is shipped to London by sea, to some other points by air. The big dealers buying it "stash it all over the world," in the words of one observer.

The United States does a lot of the buying. Even though its citizens and institutions are legally barred from dealing in gold for investment purposes, the legal commercial use of some seven million ounces annually makes the United States the world's biggest gold customer.

Willie's Dillies

By BILL McGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

Well, it's getting to be that time of year again—The time that the freckled-faced, starry-eyed, pug-nosed masters of the horsehide and hardwood don the flannels and caps and respond to the opening cry of "play ball" in Little League action.

All winter they have patiently waited for the coming season while dreaming of the prodigious feats they will accomplish once the time comes to dig in at the plate and fire off the mound.

Its their time of year and they will attack it with all the vim and vigor of an express train making up lost time between stations.

The baseball caps—decorated with the team letter—now become symbols of stature and will be worn day and night with pride and happiness.

It's also time for the fathers to provide the tips that made them "famous" on the diamond. They will be in attendance when the future major leaguers take the field—But somehow they are never found in the vicinity of the mothers who gather in their own little group—chewing their nails, keeping a handkerchief handy and suddenly covering their eyes when the baseball is projected in the direction of their pride and joy.

These mothers are the unsung heroes of the program. They hurry to get an early dinner on the table, wash the uniform that has been soiled by his tremendous slide into home plate and mend the rips that always seem to pop up in the heat of battle.

Some of them make it to the ball park but others can't make it and nervously wait at home while the conflict of giants is taking place on the dirt and grass. They keep themselves as busy as a lone bee in a field of clover as they await the outcome of the contest. The same table gets dusted over and over again. After sweeping the carpets, they suddenly realize they forgot to plug the vacuum cleaner into the socket—All the time assuring themselves that the fact that their "little man" is performing heroic deeds certainly doesn't bother them.

Suddenly, the back door flies open and there he is—beaming like a 200-watt bulb—with the joyous cry, "Mom, I got a hit tonight!"

Kind of makes it all worthwhile!

Our "fearless" forecast—It will be a "Sham" when Secretariat doesn't win the Preakness. . . Sanders draws the ganders in the Memphis Classic Golf Tournament.

Until next time, have a nice day—be a good sport.

CHS Reserves End Season With Victory

Circleville's reserve baseball squad rallied for four runs in the top of the seventh inning to down Greenfield, 6-4, Thursday on the latter's diamond.

Robin Ott was on the mound for the Red and Black and gained his fourth win of the year against no defeats. He scattered four hits, walked three and struckout 10 to grab the victory.

Greenfield jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the bottom of the second inning but Circleville cut the gap to 4-2 with a pair of markers in the top of the third.

Neither team was able to put anything more on the scoreboard until the Red and Black erupted for four tallies in the top of the final frame to pick up the win.

Jeff See paced the Circleville attack with a double and a single, Tim McNaughton added a pair of one-baggers while Dave Bevan and Ott each had a single.

Nelson was on the hill for Greenfield, giving up six hits, eight walks and fanning eight.

The Tigers of Coach Tom Cole finished the season with a fine 8-1 mark.

Arthur Ashe Spurns Cincinnati Tourney
CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Arthur Ashe said Thursday he has "nothing against Cincinnati," but he wants out of Western Tennis Championships set for August.
"I have to have some time off," said Ashe. "I want that week off."

Dodgers Shut Down Reds, 3-1

CINCINNATI (AP) — Don Sutton was thinking maybe the years had caught up to Los Angeles Dodger Manager Walter Alston. Then he got the message.

The Dodgers, trailing 1-0 in the ninth inning after power-hitting Johnny Bench broke a scoreless tie an inning earlier with a bunt, scored three runs to give Sutton a 3-1 victory over Cincinnati Thursday.

Sutton, 4-3, pitched a five-hitter, retiring 16 straight, but was on the ropes early.

After loading the bases in the opening inning, Sutton saw the 61-year-old Alston stalk to the mound.

"How many innings you want to go today?," deadpanned Alston.

"I thought," grinned Sutton, "he'd lost the ace of spades for a minute and wasn't working with a full deck. Then I got the message."

Whether the talk turned it around or not, Sutton survived the inning and emerged unscathed again in the third when the Reds left runners at second and third.

"To tell you the truth, I think Pittsburgh shell-shocked me. I've been getting behind on the hitters," said Sutton. "But it all turned around today."

Sutton was referring to a recent home run blitz, when Pittsburgh belted five solo home runs off him.

It was the Dodgers' second straight late-inning rally to beat the Reds and Alston called it "as morale-building as a 15-0 win."

"We don't have too many easy ones," he said.

Leadoff hits by Joe Ferguson and Willie Crawford ignited the uprising and a bases-loaded infield grounder by pinchhitter Steve Garvey tied it.

Rookie Davey Lopes' second broken-bat single drove in the go-ahead runs. "Actually Borbon (Pedro) made a good pitch. He jammed me inside. It was a chink hit, but I'll take it," said the 27-year-old Lopes who lifted his batting average to .353 since taking over second base from Lee Lacy two weeks ago.

Bench's run-scoring bunt "not only surprised me, but a 100 others," said Alston. Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson said Bench "was on his own." Last year, the Reds' catcher shocked San Francisco with a run-producing bunt and added a solo homer to beat the Giants 2-0.

"I hope we can keep him bunting all year," quipped Alston.

The Dodger win overshadowed a five-inning scoreless stint by reliever Clay Carroll, who started his first game since 1969.

Carroll, who went into the game with an 0-3 record and a stratospheric 10.50 earned run average, allowed four hits.

The Dodgers move to Atlanta and the Reds host San Diego for a four-game series beginning Friday night.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago topped St. Louis 6-4 in another day game, Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia 5-4 and Houston edged Atlanta 2-1 in night action, the New York Mets' game at Montreal was postponed because of rain and cold weather and San Diego and San Francisco were not scheduled.

Run-scoring singles by pinch hitter Ed Crosby and Luis Melendez in the ninth inning lifted the Cards over the Cubs.

"Finally we were able to put some hitting and pitching together," said St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst. "It's a good feeling."

The Pirates sent Steve Carlton to his fourth consecutive defeat by scoring three runs in the seventh inning to break a 2-2 tie. One came in on an error by Philadelphia's rookie third baseman, Mike Schmidt, and two scored on Dave Cash's double.

Carlton, who won 27 games and the Cy Young Award last year, is now 4-6 on the season.

Ken Forsch stopped the Braves on four hits and struck out eight for Houston, which got both its runs in the fourth on singles by Cesar Cedeno and Bob Watson, a sacrifice fly and Tommy Helms' double.

Atlanta's Hank Aaron got his 11,000th official time at bat in the fourth inning, second only to Ty Cobb's 11,429. He struck out.

Secretariat Set For 5 Opponents In Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — Secretariat, the Triple Crown contender seemingly back on the form which earned him the "super horse" tag, takes on a slim field of five opponents in Saturday's 98th running of the $150,000-added Preakness Stakes.

A record turnout is expected at Pimlico, drawn by the magnetism of the Meadow Stable colt and given an added boost by an infield farewell for former Baltimore Colts' quarterback Johnny Unitas.

Chick Lang, the Pimlico general manager, predicted today that the track's record crowd of 48,721 set last year will be easily surpassed.

"We should have between 55,000 and 60,000 people," Lang said, and he estimated that about 3,500 of them would attend chiefly because of the ceremonies honoring Unitas—who was traded to the San Diego Chargers after the 1972 National Football League season.

Most of the fans, however, will be out to see if Secretariat, the Meadow Stable colt who the Kentucky Derby in record time after being upset in the Wood Memorial, can take another step toward becoming the first Triple Crown winner since Citation in 1948.

"No one will beat Secretariat if he runs his race," said Buddy Delp, the trainer of Ecole Etage.

"I backed off on Secretariat after the Wood," Delp conceded. "But since the Derby, I have to think he's great. He went the final quarter in 23 1-5. Horses just don't do that. And after watching him here for 10 days, I have no reason to think otherwise."

But despite the presence of Secretariat, and Derby runnerup Sham who also broke the old Derby record while finishing 2 1/2 lengths behind the winner's 1:59 2-5 for the 1 1/4 miles, Delp is hoping for a miracle.

"They'll have to catch us," Delp said, "and if Secretariat and Sham worry about each other, we might

Tiger Freshmen Win Track Meet

Circleville's freshman track squad ended the season with a 68-41 win over Logan Thursday on the latter's oval. Taking first spots for the Tigers were:

Jim Cordle, 120-yard hurdles, 16.05, and pole vault, 10 feet 6 inches; Warren Yamarick, 100-yard dash, 10.8, and 220-yard dash, 23.2; Bill Bruno, mile run, 5:11.5, school record; Mike McCoy, 440-yard dash, 56.5, school record; John Payne, shot put, 33 feet 11 inches; George Moore, high jump, 5 feet 6 inches, and 880-yard run, 2:17.2; Tom England, discus, 108 feet 5 inches; and the 440 relay team, Mike McCoy, Brett Hill, Jim Cordle and Bunny Weethee, 50.0.

Coach Jim Diltz's little Tigers finished the season with a record of 6-1.

make it interesting.

Lucien Laurin, the trainer of Secretariat, noted however: "I worry about everyone, and that jockey of mine had better worry, too."

Secretariat is the early 2-5 choice to win the race which is scheduled to go off at 5:40, EDT. Television coverage is scheduled for 5-6 p.m. and radio 5:25-5:45, both by CBS.

Sigmund Sommer's Sham, again ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., is rated at 2-1. Our Native, third in the Derby, will have Don Brumfield in the saddle for owners Mrs. M.J. Pritchard, Dr. E.W. Thomas and trainer Bill Resseguet Jr.

The remainder of the field, expected to be competing chiefly for no better than third-place money of $15,000, includes Bon Etage Farm's Ecole Etage, Frederick R. Menke's Deadly Dream and Thomas Mellon Evans' Torsion. Second place is worth $30,000.

Dan Sikes Golf Leader At Memphis

MEMPHIS (AP) — "It was just a nice easy round, the kind you like to play," Dan Sikes said after he scored a five-under-par 67 for his little walk in the sun.

"Very pleasant," added the 42-year-old veteran Thursday after he had established a onestroke margin in the first round of the $175,000 Danny Thomas Memphis Golf Classic.

"I was lucky enough to have the ball close to the hole a lot. I didn't have too many long putts and I made all the short ones."

That's been a problem with the husky, slope-shouldered lawyer from Jacksonville, Fla. this season.

Just three weeks ago he missed from less than two feet to lose a playoff at Dallas. And a month before that he'd missed from about the same distance and failed by one stroke to get into a playoff at his hometown in the Greater Jacksonville Open.

But Sikes, who scored the last of his six tour triumphs in 1968, let none of the little ones get away as he moved one stroke in front of Ron Cerrudo and Dave Hill, tied at 68.

Defending champion Lee Trevino was four strokes off the pace with a 71.

Pencil Copy Winner Of River Downs Race

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Pencil Copy was the winner of the $2,100 feature race by a neck at River Downs Thursday.

Pencil Copy paid $8.80, $4 and $3.60. Senator's Boy paid $4 and $3.20. Boshugge was the show horse at $3.40.

Football Humorist Bill Edwards Quits

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — College football loses one of its humorists this summer when Wittenberg University Athletic Director Bill Edwards retires.

Edwards, who turns 68 next month, rose from the coal mines of Northeastern Ohio to a recognized coaching genius. He turned out a 167-45-8 record, including two national champions, in 24 college campaigns.

It's the Edwards wit, however, that most will remember about the gruff, tough, yet kind coalminer's son, once an eighth grade dropout.

Edwards, once termed a combination of Genghis Khan and Santa Claus, recalled some of his more famous stories before a testimonial dinner Saturday night.

He's one of the few coaches to guide teams in the pro, university and college division levels in college and the high school ranks.

He coached Ohio high school football at Springfield and Fostoria, Vanderbilt, Western Reserve and Wittenberg Universities and the Detroit Lions.

"When I was at Western Reserve," Edwards said, "we had to play at Cornell against Gil Dobie, a great coach. I kept telling our boys Cornell didn't know where Western Reserve was. They thought it was an Indian reservation."

"We had a big, inconsistent tackle at Western Reserve another time. He liked to read about himself. I told him Grantland Rice was stopping by to see us play on his way to Notre Dame."

"The big kid played the best game of his life. Of course, Rice never came near our game."

"Another time, when I was coaching Wittenberg, I went into the stands at Akron and hunted up an apple vendor. I stood in line and then went back to the bench. Ate it casually. It drove the Akron coaches nuts."

"I took a nap before a crucial game with Heidelberg one year. Overslept and was late getting to the stadium. The young Heidelberg coach—it was his first season—was all uptight and kept talking about the game's importance."

"I listened for a while, rubbed my eyes and yawned, saying, 'Gee, I'm sorry I'm late. I was so relaxed I fell asleep.' We won easily."

Seeded Players Fall In Tennis Tournament

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The parade of seeded players upset in the $150,000 Alan King Caesars Palace Tennis Classic has left Arthur Ashe as the only rated player still in competition.

Ashe, No. 5 seed, avoided the upsets that have marked the tournament by not being scheduled to compete Thursday while young Roscoe Tanner was busy eliminating No. 7 seed Cliff Drysdale.

Urbana Blitz Victor At Lebanon Raceway

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Urbana Blitz nosed out Ashlawn in a photo finish in the $1,000 featured conditioned pace at Lebanon Raceway Thursday night.

The winner paid $28.60, $9.20 and $4.20. Ashlawn returned $12 and $5.40. Noble Bay showed at $3.40.

The daily double paid $203.40 on the 2-8 combination of Avalon Dot and Sugarbrook Bobbie.

The crowd of 1,283 wagered $105,114.

Orioles Trip Tribe, 4-1

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore pitcher Jim Palmer's search for his third straight shutout ended 450 feet from home plate.

But when the mammoth ninth-inning home run hit by Cleveland catcher Dave Duncan stopped rolling, Palmer still had his third victory in a row and the memory of 26 1-3 scoreless innings.

"It's a good way to ruin a shutout, a quick way," Palmer said of his "450-foot mistake" after he had handled the Indians on three hits, 4-1.

"It was a fastball that I didn't throw in the right spot," he added. "I tried to keep it away from him but it went down the middle. At least it wasn't a cheap home run."

In the other American League games, New York overcame Milwaukee 4-2; Detroit blanked Boston 1-0; Kansas City topped Texas 6-1; Chicago edged Minnesota 5-4 and Oakland shut out California 4-0.

Palmer, who posted a 21-10 record last year, got off to a rough start in 1973. The hardthrowing righthander didn't gain his first victory until the Orioles' 18th game.

But now Palmer, 4-2, is making it rough on opposing hitters as evidenced by his last three outings, a five-hit blanking of California, a three-hit shutout of New York and Thursday night's three-hitter over Cleveland.

Kansas City broke back into the victory column after four straight losses, including Nolan Ryan's no-hitter, on John Mayberry's soft swinging and the combination of Wayne Simpson and Gene Garber's hard throwing.

At Bloomington, knuckleballer Wilbur Wood won his ninth game of the season as Dick Allen's two-run homer and Rich Reichardt's three runs-batted-in accounted for all the Chicago scoring.

The Detroit Tigers scored only one run on Tony Taylor's home run but that was all they needed as Jim Perry shut out the Red Sox on six hits.

Things looked desperate at Yankee Stadium for the home team as Milwaukee's Jim Colborn had a four-hit shutout with two outs in the bottom of the ninth.

But unfortunately for Colborn, 27 outs are required before he can accept his teammates' handshakes. In quick succession, Bobby Murcer homered, Ron Blomberg doubled and Graig Nettles singled to send the game into extra innings.

Two innings later, Nettles was accepting Yankee congratulations for his two-run homer that gave New York the victory.

In Anaheim, Dick Green hit a three-run homer and Jim "Catfish" Hunter pitched a five-hit shutout against the Angels, who lost more than the game.

They lost the services of outfielder Bobby Valentine who smashed into the center field fence while pursuing Green's home run and suffered a broken right leg. He is expected to be sidelined for at least three months.

Indy 500 Hopefuls Decrease By 3

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The number of drivers still eligible to make the 33-car field for the May 28 Indianapolis 500 has decreased by three.

Jigger Sirois of Hammond, Ind., Dee Jones of Phoenix, Ariz., and Bruce Jacobi of Indianapolis still had all or part of their refresher driving tests to complete when the deadline arrived at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

Despite several days of trial runs and adjustments, Sirois was unable to get his unorthodox Dodge-powered Eagle past the needed 160 miles per hour to complete his tests.

The car's owner, Bruce Crower, said he still planned to enter the car in the Rex Mays 150 in Milwaukee this summer.

Jones' crew was still frantically putting back together the turbocharger of his older model Mongoose-Foyt when time ran out Wednesday afternoon.

Gusty winds carried a mass of debris left by the crowds at last weekend's qualifying runs onto the track. The situation became so bad that U.S. Auto Club officials ordered the yellow light on because of "unsafe conditions."

Chief Steward Harlan Fengler then closed the track, about 4 p.m.

Bobby Orr Again Wins Norris Trophy

MONTREAL (AP) — Bobby Orr, Boston's stellar defenseman, became the first player in National Hockey League history to win the same individual award six straight years when he was named today as winner of the 1972-73 James Norris Memorial Trophy.

The 25-year-old Orr received 224 of a possible 240 points in balloting for the NHL's outstanding defenseman by members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association in the 16 league cities. Points were awarded on the basis of five for a first-place vote, three for a second place and one for a third.

Man, 84, To Return 'Home' To Farm; Neighbors Help

BURTON, Ohio (AP)—Eighty-four-year-old Joseph Petrowsky wants to go home and plant his garden, and Burton township officials say they're willing to overlook the law to let him do it.

Although mobile homes are prohibited in the township, friends of the old man plan to move a trailer house onto the farm where he lived—in a dilapidated barn—until last month. Petrowsky moved in with a family in Newbury then, after a Geauga County Grand Jury refused to indict him in the shooting death of a 16-year-old Maple Heights youth, one of a group of youths who had refused to leave the property.

Since then, a loosely organized community effort has gotten underway to let the old man return to the farm. Although he lost the property to taxes

Mr. and Mrs. Earl McCabe entertained recently, honoring the fifth birthday of their son Mark. Refreshments of ice cream, cake, coffee and punch were served to Lori Ann and Jeff Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd McCabe, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Pearce, and Melissa and Michael McCabe.

Mrs. Pauline Pearce and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rhymer and Jeff shopped in Columbus on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Franklin Strous and Kathy, Laurelville, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Strous, Sherry and Kevin of Amanda spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Clendell Reid.

Sunday guests of the Joe Jenkins and Jack were Mr. and Mrs. John Jenkins, Canton, Mrs. John Pontius, Todd, Doug, Brian and Lisa, Route 1, and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Duvall and Beth, Route 5.

three years go, he has a lifetime agreement to live there.

"He has one thing and one thing only on his mind. He wants to go back home and plant his garden," said Elmer Bollinger, who has coordinated the effort.

So far, cash and material contributions have totaled $1,000, he said. The used trailer home was purchased for $600 after neighbors inspected the barn.

The money also paid for a septic tank, a privy and a hand pump for drinking water. Before the shooting, Petrowsky scooped his drinking water out of a nearby river, Bollinger said.

The trailer will be camouflaged somewhat with a wooden structure around it, but township Zoning Commission Chairman R. Bruce Scott said he will take no action unless the commission receives a formal complaint.

He said the commission cannot issue a zoning variance but that members still are researching other legal possibilities.

Bollinger said the interest in Petrowsky's return arose because "everybody in the community feels there's a principle here."

"An old man's rights have been infringed upon," he said. But "this story can have no happy ending because a boy was killed."

Military Food Purchases Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sharp cutbacks in U.S. military personnel have reduced the quantity of food purchased by the armed services to the lowest level since before World War II, according to an Agriculture Department report.

The amount of farm food commodities used by the military declined 19 per cent last year, shrinking the armed services' share of total food consumption in the United States to 0.9 per cent from 1.1 per cent in 1971, the report said.

"In 1973, military buying may again average lower than in 1972, though the decline may be smaller," the Economic Research Service said in a national food situation report.

But the report said that higher food prices in 1973 may offset any savings because of reduced needs. Last year, the report said, the services spent about $591 million on food procurement, compared with $743 million in 1971.

According to USDA records, the military consumption last year of 0.9 per cent of the nation's total farm-produced food, including grains, livestock and other commodities, compares with a peak of 11.3 per cent in 1944, the height of World War II.

Although the military's total share of food consumption declined after the war, it held at between 2.7 and 3.5 per cent for several years before dropping to 1.7 per cent in 1950.

But in 1951, during the Korean War buildup, the military's food consumption rate rose once more to 3.4 per cent in most years.

In 1967, as U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia heightened, the military's food consumption rate rose again, to 1.7 per cent. It receded each year since.

Last year, the USDA said, military food buying included: 318 million pounds of beef and veal, down from 426 million in 1971; pork dropped to 121 million pounds last year from 169 million in 1971.

Other food categories bought by the armed forces last year, compared 1971 quantities, included: chicken and turkey 94 million pounds in 1972 and 117 million in 1971; dairy products 1.763 billion pounds and 2.071 billion; fresh fruit (an increase) 174 million pounds and 159 million; fresh vegetables 462 million pounds and 550 million; and wheat flour or equivalent 42 million pounds and 85 million.

Cincinnati Given Cannon Replicas For Park Use

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Texas has not forgotten Cincinnati's assistance during the war of independence from Mexico in 1836.

Cincinnati donated two cannons known as "The Twin Sisters" during the conflict and a Texas group is sending replicas of the guns and $50,000 to assist in the building of a memorial pavilion in Burnet Woods Park, according to Cincinnati Mayor Theodore M. Berry.

The Brown Foundation of Texas is making the donation toward the building to be named "The Lone Star" pavilion, which will house the cannons.

The guns were used in the 20-minute Battle of San Jacinto where Texans defeated Mexican forces under Santa Anna.

7 More Die In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Seven persons were killed during the night in the worst upsurge of violence in Northern Ireland in nine months.

The dead included four British soldiers, two civilian men and a 14-year-old girl.

Two other soldiers were injured seriously.

Two other men died in separate shootings. One was killed as he played darts in a pub.

The girl died of bullet wounds when guerrillas opened fire on a British armored car in Belfast. Another 14-year-old girl was injured seriously.

It was the highest toll in one night since Aug. 2, when a bomb killed eight persons in Newry. The killings raised the confirmed toll in nearly four years of communal violence in Northern Ireland to 797 dead, including 220 troops.

Many county welfare departments and children service boards, especially in urban areas, have added staff members to investigate such cases, Bates said, and a few agencies have established new programs dealing solely with the problem.

The state welfare department has hired two additional child protective services specialists to help local agencies, he added.

A bill currently pending in the Ohio House would add to the effectiveness of the program, Bates said. The measure would broaden the number of professional groups required to report cases to include coroners and operators of part- and full-time day care centers.

"This legislation would also clearly define what constitutes the 'emotional' neglect of a child and insure all local agencies report every case," he said.

Librarian, First Grade Teacher Honored By Red And Black Staff

By JUNE BRUDZINSKI
Although she is not entirely new to Circleville schools, the Red and Black staff would like to welcome Deborah Ruehling, librarian at Mound Street and High Street Elementary Schools.

DEBORAH RUEHLING

After she graduated from Morehead State University with a BA in elementary education, she came to the "pleasant community of Circleville" to begin as fourth grade teacher at Mound Street. She also chose Circleville because it is near Grove City, her hometown, where she presently resides at 930 Clark Drive.

"Just enjoying life" is what Miss Ruehling does in her spare time. This includes cooking, hiking, watching football and basketball games, reading and listening to music.

Her active life reflects on her optimistic view of today's youth. "Today's young people are full of many questions which should be answered with great understanding — the young people are great!"

This summer Miss Ruehling plans to travel throughout the southern states. Mrs. Deborah Shellhammer, new first grade teacher at Atwater, chose

French Class Eats At Wine Cellar

By PAT CURRIE
On May 16 the CHS French II classes took a field trip to the Wine Cellar Restaurant located on Route 161 near Karl Road in Columbus.

The purpose of the trip, scheduled from 9:45 a.m. to approximately 1:30 p.m., was to give students the opportunity of eating a French meal in a European-style restaurant.

The meal included Quiche Torronne, a type of open-faced pie made of cheese and bacon, steak, french fries and one beverage. Extra items that could be purchased by students were French Onion soup, French pastry and any refills on beverages. Students were also able to buy imported cheese from the cheese shop.

The restaurant also offered a tour of the wine and cheese shop, explaining how the wines received their names (and the pronunciation of the names) and also explanations about the cheeses.

Seniors Look Forward To Graduation

By KRIS RIED
What is foremost in the minds of seniors when they have only one week of school left? They are trying to determine what they plan to do with their lives once they "get out." They are supposed to know if they want to attend a certain college or get a job.

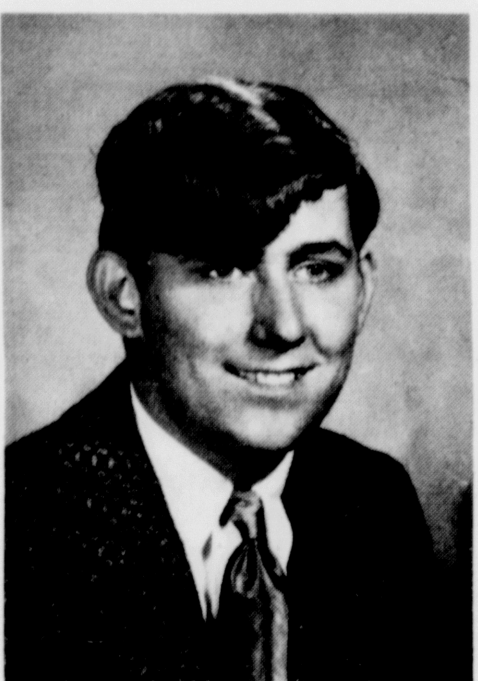

Pictures, announcements, caps and gowns are all a part of waiting for that final day of classes before they venture into the world. It is a sadness for some and a relief to others.

The last year is filled with memories and a promise to return for the class reunion ten years later. Remember when's are repeated by the class until the entire school knows the mischief those upper classmen got into.

Practice for commencement is the time for the girls to wear their shortest shorts and barest blouses in order to get a "quick tan." The boys' hair is trimmed and mustaches shaved in order to appear decent before they are allowed to march across the platform to receive diplomas.

If they had to do it over again, how many students would have a desire to come back for another four high school years? They are not supposed to look back but ahead to the future they make for themselves. Maybe the road will be long and rough, but their work will certainly straighten the path.

DECA Student Of The Week Is Announced

CARL GARRETT

By TERESA MALLETT
This week's DECA student is Carl Garrett. He resides at 544 E. Union St. with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Garrett.

Carl is a grill cook at the Covered Wagon Steak House. He was told that the steak house was hiring, so he went and filled out an application and was later called for an interview. Now he is working 35 hours a week. Carl's reaction to working with the public is that most people are easy to get along with.

Carl's likes are Chevys, pizza, skiing and steak while his dislikes are Mondays, snobbish people and rainy days.

Carl plans to learn business management for Covered Wagon Steak House after graduation.

Ball Team Reaches Potential

The Tiger baseball squad has finally begun to play up to their expected potential. In tournament play thus far, the Red and Black have already downed fourth-seeded Logan Elm 2-1 in nine innings and crushed league rival, Washington CH 17-1.

In the Logan Elm contest the Tigers combined good defense and pitching to gain the win. Phil Roll and Dave Truex handled the pitching chore as they shut off the hard-hitting Braves. Paul England powered a home run in the sixth inning to tie the game 1-1. Rock Davis, following a walk to John Ankrom, and a single by Truex hit a single up the middle to score Ankrom from second for the winning tally.

The Court House game was a nip-and-tuck affair until the Tigers destroyed the Blue Lions with twelve runs in the fifth inning. Hitting for Circleville were Tom Taylor and Dave Truex each with three hits apiece. Greg Hoskins turned in a fine mound performance as he lost his bid for a shutout in the bottom of the seventh.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Not a day to put your new plans into action. Instead, carefully study those already in operation and iron out any kinks that show up. It's not the time for taking risks of any kind. For the present hold to the tried and true.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care you don't make unwise moves or make changes because you are feeling nervous. Keep steadfast to plans made. A new associate has some ideas but they aren't good. Discard them.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have annoying matters to handle, so do them speedily and well. Mate is upset so be thoughtful and helpful. Try not to lose your temper with anyone. Strive for more harmony at home.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Matters could be tense with an associate who talks too bluntly without realizing it, so keep your cool. Engage in work without expecting adulation. Benefits will come later.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Attend to own work early in the day and don't expect a fellow worker to do some of it for you. Look carefully at all clothing you buy today for possible flaws. Relax tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't take any chances today, particularly in business dealings. Handle routine work in a most efficient way. Show more loyalty to mate. Be more encouraging instead of grumbling.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Instead of acting in an emotional way at home, use a tactful approach and get far better results. Not a good day for making changes of any kind. Spend more time with good friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Particular care should be exercised in travel. Making sly remarks to others could lead to trouble. Don't lose your temper with anyone and you win out. Show others you have compassion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't handle any important financial affairs today when the planets are not favorable, but stick to small personal matters. Take care of those repairs to property you've put off.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be careful in handling affairs of importance since you are not thinking too wisely now, since you are discontented. It is wise to improve your appearance. Avoid one who criticizes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) It is better to attend to duties today instead of running off on some tangent or you will regret it later on. A hunch you have is not good, so don't use it. Keep your cool.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You want to make new friends while enjoying old ones, but this is not a good day for such. Concentrate on your most cherished goals instead. You can accomplish a great deal today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle a civic affair which you have been procrastinating on for some time. Show that you are conscientious. Avoid a bigwig who is not in a good mood right now. Take health treatments.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those fascinating young people who has good ideas but will be so outspoken that others could resent it. Teach to keep plans to self and not to give unsolicited advice, and then this becomes a successful life. Some profession that takes your progeny to different countries is best here. Add various languages to the educational curricula.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

- Tapioca Pudding For Cattle?
LONDON (AP) - Cereal feeds for beef and dairy cattle are becoming so expensive that British farmers are looking around for cheaper substitutes. Tapioca, or cassava, the raw material from which it is made, is high on the list.

Dutch and Belgian farmers have been using the product for some time. Mike Stranks, an animal nutrition expert with the Agricultural Development and Advisory Services, says: "In Holland and Belgium relatively small quantities of cereals are used for livestock feeding because they import a lot of cassava and citrus pulp which are used in preference to cereals as a cheaper source of energy."

Farm Kids Have Edge In Contest
PEORIA, Ill. (AP) - The February issue of the magazine "American Hampshire Herdsman" carries a story about the magazine and Paramount Pictures launching a contest for children to find "the country's most humble, radiant, terrific pig."

Youngsters are to send a snapshot of their favorite pig along with a 25-word or less explanation of why they think their pig is the most humble, radiant and terrific. Prize will be a U.S. Savings bond and an exclusive interview in the Herdsman. The movie company's interest is its new animated movie "Charlotte's Web," whose star is a pig.

We welcome it.

When we start selling a car in record numbers, there's gotta be a reason. With Satellite there is. It's a beautiful car to look at. A beautiful car to drive. Our Satellite Sebring-Plus is so quiet, we call it "Super-Quiet." Quiet is built into the doors, over the wheels, under the hood, even behind the rear seat. Satellite was built to be seen, but not heard. We welcome the opportunity to show you how Satellite stacks up against other mid-size cars. Beautiful!
